

"Echoes of Resilience: The Journey of a Covenant University Student"

I can never be normal, this life of mine,
Born with a disability, yet I still shine.
More than a challenge, it's my ability,
To conquer the odds with unwavering humility.

The tears of a warrior, unseen by the crowd,
But within me, a spirit, fiercely proud.
The battle undergone, engraved in my soul,
Each hardship endured, making me whole.

All the pain, all the strife,
Yet I persist in this journey of mine.
The struggle for life, a relentless quest,
But in every setback, I find my best yet.

Like with each battle recurring, I rise once more,
Defying the doubts that linger and roar.
Everything feared, I face it head on,
For I know within me, I'll always evolve.

No one really understands the depths I tread,
The silent wars fought, the demons I've shed.
That battle hanging on to a thin line,
But with each step forward, I redefine.

Not really knowing your last, but having faith,
In the path ahead, despite the wraith.
Yet all so lost in the labyrinth of fate,
I persevere, refusing to abate.

Very sad a tale, some may perceive,
But within me, a spirit, unbound and naive.
The unending battle, a testament to my will,
As I navigate life's maze, seeking fulfillment still.

The warrior's style, etched in every stride,
With courage as my armor, I'll not be denied.
In the echoes of resilience, my story is told,
The journey of a Covenant student.